

PREPARING TO BACK THE MONROE DOCTRINE IN MEXICAN CONTROVERSY

Look no Interference From Old World Dealing With England Repudiates (Cautious) Intervention; France Conciliatory

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. The United States government is to notify the nations of the world generally that Mexico in Mexican affairs will be regarded as an unshaken government.

President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and Counselor John Householder of the state department have exchanged ideas on the subject of the world should express. It is communicated to foreign governments everywhere, in the policy established earlier of keeping other nations from every step taken in its handling of the Mexican situation.

Proclamation or note also will serve, it is understood, to define the policy of the United States in de facto authorities in Mexico, reiterating the fact that recognition can only be given to governments which are founded on law and order.

It was expected that the new famous interview with Sir Lionel, expressing the view that the United States did not understand conditions in Mexico.

Another incident tonight that was regarded with significance was the assurance that came from Ambassador Jusserand to the state department that the French government, in sending a warship to Mexican waters did not intend in any way to embarrass the United States.

The officials indicated satisfaction over the approach of the French government's attitude.

There is a possibility if the powers indicate further an unwillingness to withdraw the United States from the situation, may withhold its protest, but some officials were of the opinion that sooner or later such a situation which they regarded as a declaration of war would be inevitable.

Official American Retainers.

Administration officials, particularly in the state department, are in constant communication with Mexican affairs. They are not only in the state department, but also in the state department, and they are in the state department, and they are in the state department.

The disposition of the high officials of the government tonight, was to await the developments of the next 24 hours before making any move. President Wilson had some doubt about going to Mobile, Ala., to make an address.

LONDON CONSIDERS SITUATION IS GRAVE

English Press, With Only Few Exceptions, Supporting British Government

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(Saturday).—“Owing to important business,” Walter H. Page, the United States ambassador, last night excused himself from keeping an engagement to preside over the lecture of an American professor whose subject was “Great Britain and the United States.” The ambassador’s “important business” is believed here to have been connected with the Mexican situation.

The British press is completely alive to the gravity of the Mexican affairs. The Daily Graphic, which finds it significant that one of the secretaries of Foreign Office, Mr. Grey, Sir William G. Tyrrell, is being sent to Washington, again in an editorial today denounces President Huerta, whose statement of Thursday, it says, proves his gulfiness for any responsible office and ship, and justifies President Wilson’s refusal to accord recognition to his government.

Alone in Its Stand.

The Graphic, however, is almost alone in taking the view that Great Britain is wrong in recognizing Huerta. The tendency of the editorial opinion generally is to regard it as impossible that the two English speaking peoples should quarrel over the affairs of a South American country.

At the same time, the Daily Telegraph recognizes the serious danger of Huerta attempting to marshal the people of the United States and the less interested nations of the old world into opposing camps, and says it feels convinced that the good sense and political wisdom in America will see the risk and to successfully and resolutely avoid it.

The Standard declares that it sees nothing discreditable in the British government looking after British interests in all Mexico, since other nations protect their commercial interests in a similar manner. The newspaper contends that commercial competition ought not to prevent political friendship.

Sir Hiram Maxing, writing in the Morning Post, says the enormous

TWO AMERICAS CAN MANAGE OWN AFFAIRS

Col. Roosevelt in Speech at Buenos Ayres Upholds New World Ideas

LAURE AMERICAN METHODS

United States and Brazil Can Continue to Be Leaders, He Declares

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 24.—Relations between North and South America are certain to become much closer in the future, the development of South America will be the most striking growth feature of the twentieth century as the development of North America was the most striking growth feature of the nineteenth century, the only desire of the United States towards its neighbors of the western world is to see them stable, orderly and prosperous—such are the highlights of Theodore Roosevelt’s first speech in South America, delivered today at the government university here.

Every American nation, Colonel Roosevelt said, had reason to congratulate itself upon the stability and prosperity of its sister nations. Any country, he continued, whose people conducted themselves in stable and orderly fashion could place among its assets the hearty and practical friendship of the United States. Chronic wrongdoing, however, might force ultimately in America, as elsewhere, intervention by some strong and stable civilized nation in the exercise of an international police power.

“Such a duty,” asserted Colonel Roosevelt, “is thankless, irksome and unpleasant, whether it be performed by England, France or the United States; whether in Algeria, in Egypt or on the isthmus of Panama. And therefore we all hail with delight the advent to real power of such nations as Brazil, the Argentine and Chile.”

Goal Will For World.

Colonel Roosevelt’s address, combined with expression of good will for Brazil, America and admiration for the progress of her leading nations in building the foundations for their careers. Brazil and other nations of the south, he said, stood on equal footing with the United States, among the council of nations. And one cardinal doctrine on which all nations of America agreed, he asserted, a doctrine of vital concern to the American family of powers, was the principle that the western world should not be treated as a frontier ground for fresh colonization or territorial aggrandizement by any old world power.

Colonel Roosevelt’s speech was as follows:

“The western hemisphere is slowly working out for itself its own theory of that part of international policy which concerns both the attitude of all the American commonwealths in the face of the rest of the world, and also their dealings with one another. You, my hosts and hearers, and I, your guest, and all our fellow-countrymen alike, belong to the young nations of the new world. Because of the fact that it is a new world, and that we are young nations, we suffer certain disadvantages and have certain peculiar difficulties of our own to face.

Enjoy Free National Hand.

“Nevertheless, also because of these very facts, we enjoy compensating advantages which more than outweigh the disadvantages. Prominent among them are:

ANNOUNCE POSITIVE IN FEW DAYS; A ‘DARK HORSE’

Congressman Seidenbridge Knows Who Will Be Appointed; All Known Candidates Lose Out

Congressman H. H. Seidenbridge has finally decided upon who he will name as the next postmaster of Colorado Springs. But he won’t tell. According to a statement given out yesterday by the congressman he will announce his choice within the next few days, and this selection will not include any of the candidates named as possibilities during the last two weeks of his visit here.

In a conference held yesterday with one of the candidates, Mr. Seidenbridge stated that the next postmaster here should be a man well known in business circles but who had not been considered a candidate and that the 10 people whose names have been prominently and persistently mentioned as being possible appointees, would all be eliminated from the race. Despite a process of elimination yesterday conducted by prominent Democrats, no successful conclusion was reached as to who the “dark horse” was.

The names that have been frequently mentioned for the position but whose chances now have been “darkening” are: Adrian Ugle, Clyde Starratt, E. C. Skelton, W. E. Hedges, Andy Adams, W. C. Jones, J. H. Bates, Dr. G. C. Kennedy and E. H. Johnson.

EMPLOYER GETS REST OF BARGAIN

WFO. WILSON URGES ALL GET TOGETHER

Mining Congress Asks U. S. to Modify Antitrust Law Affecting Industry

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—The American Mining Congress, at its final session here today, adopted a resolution urging upon congress and the state legislatures the necessity of modifying the antitrust laws, as applied to the companies utilizing natural resources. In order that these resources may be conserved and proper safeguards thrown around the employees. The resolution recites that federal reports show the coal industry of the country to be in a deplorable condition, returning but a small profit upon investments, that federal and state laws, increasing competition and preventing reasonable cooperation among those engaged in coal mining result, not only in preventing a fair return for the investment of capital, but in most cases allow only the recovery of from 50 to 60 per cent of the buried heat, light and power, and that these laws limit the surrounding of the employees engaged in mining with all possible safeguards.

Other resolutions adopted urge the “more liberal administration of land laws in Alaska or the enactment of new legislation calculated to interest private capital in the development of the great natural resources of that territory; the creation of a department of mines with its head a member of the president’s cabinet; stringent laws for the protection of minority stockholders; and an investigation by the department of justice of scandals regarding securities listed on the New York Stock exchange.”

The appointment of a committee to investigate and recommend to the various states a uniform system of valuation of mining properties for the purpose of taxation was also recommended.

William B. Wilson, secretary of labor, addressed the morning session of the congress, and urged voluntary arbitration as a remedy for labor misunderstandings.

“The employer has the great advantage over the employee in making wage contracts,” said Mr. Wilson. “Only where the employee is not collectively in this class on equal terms with the employer. Collective bargaining of this nature is as beneficial to the employer as to the employee. Inevitably, it is a part of what they have produced. The only way to remedy this is to sit at the council table. Then voluntary arbitration comes in.

“Compulsory arbitration is contrary to the broad spirit of human rights. It may lead to the employers making an unfair sacrifice or to the employees working under conditions which are onerous. The only fair arbitration is one where the basis has been laid down in advance. Where a third party is called in, dissatisfaction always follows.”

CONGREGATIONALISTS OPPOSE INDIVIDUAL ASSESSMENT BOOST

Ask President Wilson to Prevent Segregation of Negroes in Capitol

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 24.—Another acrimonious debate was precipitated today before the commission of 19 of the National Council of Congregational churches when it was announced that it was intended to raise the individual assessment of each Congregationalist in the United States toward the support of the national congregation from 3 to 4 cents a year.

Frederic H. Page of Massachusetts, who had secured an advance copy of the recommendations of the committee of 19, asked the committee for information. Frank Kimball, a member of the committee, explained the increase but said the commission hoped later to lower the assessment by taking some of the increasing profits from the publication of church books to support the council.

Page, who is president of the Sunday school and publishing society of the church, tonight charged the committee with bad faith in not having consulted his society before formulating the plan. He also declared the commission had covered up its financial statement and hoped to get it through the council before delegates knew its real substance.

Finally Abandon Plan.

Rev. W. E. Horton of Illinois, one of the commission, made a heated reply, declaring the commission had no intention of “railroading” anything through the council. Page answered that the publishing society could not continue its task if its funds were taken to support the council.

After a lengthy discussion, the commission stated it would abandon the plan of using the publishing society’s profits.

At the national council today a resolution was presented to the secretary asking the council to appeal to President Wilson to use his good offices against the “humiliation, oppression and segregation of negro employees under the government in Washington, D. C.” The resolution was sent to the committee.

TWO KILLED IN RIOT AT WALSENBURG

Serious Disorders Break Out Between Strikers and Mine Guards

Excitement Running High

Farrar Says Operators Must Reduce Price of Coal to Get Militant

TRINIDAD, Oct. 25.—(Saturday).—Andy Anwin, a Finn, shot in yesterday’s battle at Walsenburg, died here early this morning.

TRINIDAD, Oct. 24.—At 8:30, telephone advices from Walsenburg stated firing had been resumed between strikers and guards at and near the Walsenburg mine. The situation is regarded as serious.

Advices to the sheriff’s office here tonight stated that strikers had stopped a train near Walsenburg and taken a machine gun being sent to the Walsenburg mine by the operators. Later, it is said, the machine gun was turned on the searchlight that has been used, nightly, at the mine. Several shots were fired, wounding the man operating the light. According to reports here, the man had several fingers shot off.

Sheriff Jefferson Farr of Walsenburg has asked Sheriff J. S. Gresham of Trinidad to send deputies to Walsenburg to aid in searching for the men who did the shooting.

Excitement Runs High.

Excitement is running high and Walsenburg is in a state of chaos and telephone communication says some immediate action should be taken.

Andy Anwin, a striker, aged 36, who in this afternoon’s battle was shot in the groin and chest, will die and Chris Kvich, who was shot in the eye, will die. Kvich, who is a Slav, is 34 years of age and single.

Witmore is the deputy shot, the bullet grazing his head. He is not seriously wounded.

Cliff Crook, who was killed in the affair, the afternoon leaves a wife and child in Italy. Anwin and Kvich who were shot were reported dying at a late hour tonight and little hope is held out for the recovery of Charles Youst, an American.

Colored Women Start Trouble

According to the most authentic reports, the trouble today at Walsenburg started when the furniture and household goods of miners were being moved from Seventh street to the mining camp, where they were to resume work. As the wagons from the camp attempted to load the goods, a colored woman by the name of Mrs. Richards opened fire with a six-shooter at one of the guards and immediately 100 strikers gathered and the rioting and shooting began.

The machine gun thought to have been taken by the strikers was their own, it having been consigned to the Neesley Hardware company, and upon its arrival the strikers at once took charge of it and had it immediately mounted at the tent colony there.

In answer to an appeal from Sheriff Farr of Walsenburg, Sheriff Gresham dispatched 20 deputies on the C. & S. tonight to aid in quelling the disturbance.

It was rumored here tonight that a battle would be precipitated at Ludlow as soon as deputies had left for that tent colony with 60 warrants for the arrest of strikers who are supposed to have taken part in the last shooting affray there.

No news has come from the sheriff and deputies who left here for the camp.

WILSON OPPOSES VANDERBILT PLAN

INFLUENCES SEVERAL MEMBERS

Currency Legislation Still Uncertain; Many Suggestions Offered

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Whether there shall be one federal reserve bank with branches throughout the United States, or several banks as provided for in the administration bill, promises to be the chief issue of the final currency reform fight in the senate committee that is to open up Monday. The hearings of the committee will conclude tomorrow night, and the committee members will begin Monday the arduous task of attempting to agree upon a revision of the Glass bill that will prove acceptable to President Wilson and the house.

The president made it known in emphatic terms today that he was opposed to the central bank plan as suggested yesterday by Frank A. Vanderlip of the National City bank of New York, and as endorsed informally by many members of the senate committee. He reiterated through Secretary Tamm that the Glass-Owen bill with its system of 12 regional reserve banks related only through the functions of one federal reserve board sitting at Washington, was “admirably suited” to the needs of the country.

President Sways Members.

It was apparent tonight that the course of several members of the committee probably would be determined finally by the attitude taken by President Wilson and other party leaders as to the expediency of the single bank plan. Senators O’Gorman, Hitchcock and Reed, Democrats, all favor the idea of a single federal reserve bank as opposed to many separate ones, but it is believed that their advocacy of the plan may be abandoned in committee, if the Democratic leaders insist that such a measure could not be passed through the house.

Senator Reed urged the president today to withhold judgment on the plan.

4 KILLED, MANY WOUND IN NEW YORK BLAZE

Mary Issig Killed Building Structure With Clothing on Fire

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—A gas oven in which metal was being enameled, on the top floor of a six-story factory building in Canal street, exploded today killing four persons. More than a score of others were injured or burned in the fire that succeeded the explosion and some of them may die. Three of those killed were women. All were workers in the building.

Searchlight played on the ruins tonight while firemen sought for more bodies, which it was thought might have been overlooked.

The district attorney’s office began an investigation. About 200 persons were employed in the building, which was occupied by manufacturers of machinery, mirrors, clothing and other goods.

The escape of some of the trapped workers was spectacular. With their clothing ablaze, they climbed out through flame-sewn windows, onto fire escapes, and dropped to the sidewalk. Many were badly injured from the drop from upper floors. Spectators beat out the flames from their clothing.

HOUSTON TAX PLAN PROVED WORTHY OF THE ATTENTION OF OTHER CITIES—J. J. PASTORIZA

Texas City Commissioner Tells of Scheme by Which Property Owners Are Benefited

Ninety-eight per cent of the taxpayers of Houston are perfectly satisfied with both the Somers system of equalizing realty values and the Houston plan of taxation, according to J. J. Pastorza, tax and finance commissioner of the Texas city, who last night addressed a representative body of business men in the auditorium at the Chamber of Commerce.

The Houston plan of taxation is a modification of the single tax and in Houston possibly is only a step toward obtaining the more radical system. The plan was devised after the commissioners had decided to adopt the Somers system of equalizing realty values and solely upon the continued recommendations of Mr. Pastorza, who has spent years studying taxation and is now holding the position of commissioner of finance and taxation solely for the purpose of giving to Houston a plan whereby everyone will be treated the same and all will be required to pay as small a tax as is possible.

Mr. Pastorza’s talk last night was listened to with much interest and practically every one in the auditorium fully agreed with him at the end of his speech, that the power system has far better results than the methods commonly used in the thousands of cities throughout the country. After his set

MINE GIVES UP ITS DEAD RELUCIANTLY

All Hope of Finding Any Other Entombed Men Alive Abandoned

TWO RESCUE MEN PERISH

Authorities Now Place Dead at 263; Only 23 Were Rescued Alive

DAWSON, N. M., Oct. 24.—The condition of seven bodies brought to the surface of Stag Canon Mine No. 2, late tonight gave the first substantial indication of the particular location in the mine at which the explosion last Wednesday afternoon was the most terrific. Four of the seven were taken from the eighteenth chamber east on the high floor, the same room in which two men were found last morning lost their lives. These four men were far more mutilated than have been any of the rest, clothes from the body of one man having been entirely burned off. It is in this chamber that the rescuers have found the greatest amount of debris and here where the black damp has been found to have been most prevalent.

The fact that a major portion of the bodies yet remain undiscovered, the total number late tonight being 61, even though the work of exploration has progressed to within one room of the last chamber, and that in this room the force of the explosion was greatest, strengthened the belief of mine officials tonight that no one is within the mine entombed alive.

Only 23 Rescued Alive

All indications tonight point to the certainty that 23 will remain the total number of survivors from the 274 miners who were working at the time the explosion took place. The work of bringing forth the bodies is being pushed as rapidly as possible, but mine men say that of the 23 who were rescued, only 11 are in good condition. The bodies of the 23 who were rescued are being used tonight as the fastest way by which the bodies can be conveyed to the surface. The use of mules also permits the helmetmen to work at the dead bodies as well as continue their exploration. The sledges were taken by helmetmen to the farthest point explored. Helmet-craws followed and whenever they came upon a body in proximity to a sledge it was placed upon it so that when the atmosphere cleared sufficiently mules can be harnessed to the drags and proceed with their burden.

Face Great Obstacles.

The floor of the mine throughout is covered with heavy timbers and fallen rock which makes travel exceedingly hard. Until the sledges had been constructed rescuers were forced to carry the bodies on stretchers for distances varying from 600 feet to a mile and a half in length. So far no unhelmeted miner is permitted to pass the thirteenth chamber and that is accessible only through a roundabout course in the entries.

As was the case last night, the air in the mine at 10 o’clock tonight is much clarified, but government rescuers stated that extreme care would be taken throughout the night to prevent a repetition of today’s disaster.

'KEEP DEPOT COMMISSION,'
PLEA OF WEST SIDE ASS'N

Ask Financial Support of Council for Project; Want More Storm-Sewers for Protection

Asking that the union depot commission be allowed to continue its work and that it receive financial support from the city authorities, the members of the West Side Improvement society last night passed resolutions in which they stated that the dissolution of the commission would be fatal to the project.

The meeting was held at the Washington school and was the most enthusiastic since the formation of the organization. A number of talks were made, among them being a short address by Mayor C. L. McKesson, who discussed the crosswalk problem. The society has asked that more walks be provided, not only for the west side but for the entire city, and the mayor told them he would take the matter up with the council at the earliest opportunity.

According to a report, "Little Kansas," the section near the Denver & Rio Grande tracks, has nearly disappeared. The old buildings have been removed and the ground is being cleared.

The committee on the matter of flood waters recommended that more storm sewers be built to avoid any such damage as was done last summer during the heavy rains.

The resolutions on the union depot matter were introduced by D. S. Gilmore and were as follows:

Resolved, by the West Side Improvement society, that we favor a continuance of the agitation for a union railway terminal.

"That in our judgment this project can best be advanced by the continuance of a commission for that special purpose."

"That such commission should be given adequate financial support by the authorities, and should receive the moral support of the entire community."

"That we believe the dissolution of the union depot commission at this time would be detrimental if not fatal to the success of the project."

Neither Scored On; Dartmouth Has Made More Points Than Any Other Big Team

Taking a group of college eleven which in a majority of their games have considerably more than an even chance to win—say Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Penn Dartmouth, Cornell, Carleton, the Army and the Navy—only two of the lot have an unchained slate on the defensive side. These two are Yale and the Navy, neither of which has had its goal line crossed either through the air or along the ground. These two, however, have been in scoreless ties, Yale with Maine and the midshipmen with Pittsburgh. None of the nine has been beaten except Cornell and Carleton. Cornell having lost to Carleton and Carleton to Pittsburgh. Dartmouth has done the most scoring of the lot. The Hanoverians have made 147 points in four games to opponents' 18. The Tigers who meet Dartmouth next Saturday have 124 points for four games to nine for opponents. Each team has been scored on twice, a touchdown and a field goal against Princeton and two touchdowns against Dartmouth. The opponents they have met are entirely different, and such as they are Dartmouth has done better than Princeton on the offense and not quite so well on the defense. Yale's record for five games is 94 points to none for opponents, and the Blue already has a bigger total than it made all of last fall. Harvard's record is 118 to 10 for four games. Penn's 124 to 6 for five games. Carleton's 114 to 18 for six games. Cornell's 88 to 26 for five games. The Navy's 52 to 6 for three games, and the Army's 70 to 6 for three games. Touchdowns have been scored on every one of the nine teams except Yale and the Navy. On the whole, the scoring by the stronger teams has been of generous extent, although it is notable that seven of the nine haven't been able to keep opponents from going over for a touchdown.

Princeton, Pennsylvania and Dartmouth Especially to Display Strength

NEW YORK Oct. 24 Football games which will demonstrate the real caliber of several of the big eastern varsity eleven are scheduled to be played tomorrow. Princeton, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania are the universities whose eleven step on the testing scales tomorrow. Dartmouth plays Princeton at Princeton N. J. and the Carleton Indians invade Franklin Field Philadelphia to meet the University of Pennsylvania team. Of these two games the Princeton-Dartmouth contest is the more important, since neither eleven has met defeat and each has future games to play with combinations already making gridiron history for 1913. The games between Pennsylvania and Carleton Indiana is expected to produce a sensational type of play. On general form this autumn the Quakers appear to have the advantage. Harvard will have Penn State as its opponent tomorrow. Penn State already defeated by Washington and Jefferson 17 to 0, does not appear to be a formidable opponent for the Crimson team. Penn State's conquerors Washington and Jefferson all try their hand against Yale. Cornell is called upon to face a powerful aggregation in the University of Pittsburgh team. The principal games in the east with last season's scores are shown in the appended table.

Outcome of Contest Decides Claim of Each School to Championship

CHICAGO Oct. 24 Arriving in the battle their strongest contenders for a decisive contest Chicago and Purdue meet here tomorrow in the feature event of the day a central states football program. The outcome of the game hangs the claim of early of lease to the year's conference championship ship. A game of wide interest taken place in Nashville tomorrow when Michigan meets Vanderbilt. Wisconsin veterans hope to gain prestige by downing Michigan Agricultural team tomorrow. An annual battle of more than usual interest is on the cards for Indianapolis where Illinois and Indiana meet. The former are inclined to favor the former. Michigan seems to follow the North western team and the reported Iowa slump will have to be pretty severe, say critics, to keep the Hawkeyes from beating the Purple at Evanston. Among important games tomorrow are: Purdue vs Chicago at Chicago. Michigan vs Vanderbilt at Nashville. Illinois vs Indiana at Indianapolis. Iowa vs Northwestern at Evanston. Michigan A C vs Wisconsin at Madison. North Dakota vs Minnesota, at Minneapolis. Missouri vs Ames, at Ames. Kansas A C vs Kansas, at Manhattan. Terrors to Meet D. U. Freshmen Today on Washburn Field

Game in Mormon Camp Is Center of Attraction for Rocky Mountain Enthusiasts

Although three football contests are scheduled for the Rocky Mountain region this afternoon Mines Utah Aggie-Boulder and D. U. South Dakota the first probably will attract the most attention in the state than either of the other two. Full of confidence and determination the Mines left for Salt Lake City Thursday night. And there was something about the atmosphere surrounding the Mines that made the bystander think today's game would be just a little harder fought than the ordinary gridiron struggle. The pick of the Mines squad is in the city by the big lake. Only Jackie Lavender was left behind. Both Athletic Director Eric Kistler and Coach H. F. Buckingham declared that they expected to win. And the declaration was far from an idle boast. They had and gave reasons. They do not believe the Mormons can penetrate the Golden defense. They do believe that the Mines shift attack closely modeled upon that of Yale will bring victory back to Colorado. Both men, however, have a faint idea that they are not going to get just exactly what might be termed as a square deal. And both took the trouble before leaving to express their determination to make the Utah reformation do the golden thing. Neither Dodge coach has ever had a game on the field by the salty lake. They were considerably peeved several days ago, when Coach Remmon of Utah declined to consider Walter Sheldon, an Elm Denver High school instructor for umpire. Remmon narrowed their choice to Thomas Hyer of Northwestern and Ted Stuart of Michigan. Hyer was taken along. The last thing before leaving Kistler declared he expected the same treatment from the Mormons that they are given when they come to Colorado. In case it is not given different scheduled will be made next year, he intimated.

Rockefeller nine years ago. The big gift to John Hopkins Medical school made on the sole condition that it be used to permit the staff of professors to devote their entire time to their studies and classes. It is the first donation ever made by the board to a medical school and the largest single donation the board has ever made to any institution of learning. Calumet Miners Fire Upon Train

CALUMET, Mich. Oct. 24—The Du-luth South Shore & Atlantic evening train carrying striking miners for the Calumet & Hecla Mining company was fired on tonight supposedly by strikers about a mile from Hancock. Soldiers and deputies on the train returned the fire. No one on the train was hurt. It is not known whether any of the men who fired at the train were hit. The train ran through a scattering rifle fire for three-quarters of a mile. Those in the train tore up car seats and barricaded the windows. Several hundred shots were exchanged. Two hundred striking miners arrested at the Alhambra and Mohawk mines this morning by deputies and troops for alleged violation of the injunction prohibiting interference with workmen were arraigned this afternoon before Circuit Judge J. B. H. H. and held for trial. All of the prisoners were released on their own recognizance. Six arrests were made tonight in connection with the stoning at Hancock yesterday of a passenger train carrying strikebreakers. One of the men arrested is Daniel Sullivan, president of the Hancock Copper Miners union. He is charged with ston-

U. Freshmen Today on Washburn Field

Lineup against the strong Denver university freshmen, the Colorado Springs High school Terrors will start their race for the state interscholastic championship this afternoon on Washburn field. The contest will be called promptly at 2:30 o'clock. Practically all of the Denver university men are former High school stars and are said to be fast and scrappy. Little hope is to be had on the outcome of the contest, the D. U. bunch being almost an unknown quantity. During the last week Coach J. Acker of the Springs aggregation has been putting his players through a series of stiff workouts. Bazzing speed may be expected in today's contest, and it is probable that the Terrors game will be open to a degree never seen before. The Terrors likely will line up as follows: Ahl, E. Klemmendorf, M. McIntosh, G. Cheese, C. L. Bohn, R. Richardson, R. Lendrum, R. Davis, Deal, G. Nifong, R. Holman, G. Gray, R. H.

Mahmout, Wrestler Often Seen in America Killed in Bulgaria by Bandits

CHICAGO Oct. 24—Yusuf Mahmout, a Bulgarian wrestler who met a number of American matmen, including Frank Gotch, by whom he was defeated, was killed by a band of Bulgarian bandits in the mountains near Silistria, his home according to a story told by two Turkish wrestlers who arrived here today. Mahmout was petty officer in the Bulgarian army in the late war and according to their story went to the town to draw some money to pay off the men in his command. Sixteen bandits learning the purpose of his trip waylaid him on his return but because Mahmout had procured only orders instead of coin they shot and killed him. Mahmout's death occurred three weeks ago.

DOLGAS, Ariz. Oct. 24—Jack Forest of F. P. Fox, a well-known automobile racer, driver, was killed and John Driver, a negro mechanic, was injured when Forest's racing car turned turtle early tonight on the El Paso Phoenix course, 17 miles west of this city. Forest had entered his car in the Phoenix state fair races next month and was enroute to that city. Before leaving Dolgas he said he expected to make the trip to Phoenix a distance of 2 miles in 30 minutes. Driver who was removed to the county hospital said the big racing car struck a hollow in the road and somersaulted twice, landing wheels upward with Forest's death. Forest was 32 years old.

VANDERLIP'S BANKING PLAN

ADMITTEDLY the Glass-Owen currency bill is weak. It is a good beginning, but that is all. Even its most ardent sponsors concede imperfections, but claim it is the best that can be hoped for at the present. And the chief reason given by these currency reformers why a stronger bill cannot be passed is bank opposition.

But now comes Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City bank of New York, the chief Standard Oil banking concern, and one of the strongest financial institutions in the United States, with a plan much more far-reaching and more scientific than that of the timid politicians who drew the Glass-Owen bill. Press dispatches did not explain fully the details of the Vanderlip plan, but the details are of minor importance, provided the underlying principles are right.

And this is indubitably true of Mr. Vanderlip's proposition. He would have, in the first place, one strongly centralized federal bank, with branches and sub-branches as needed. Centralization is one of the most crying needs of the present banking system, and it is only very imperfectly provided for in the administration bill.

Mr. Vanderlip would have this central bank under the absolute control of the Federal government. Every member of the board would be appointed by the President, and the central board would appoint the boards for the branch banks. No need to fear Wall street control there; Wall street could then control the banking system only by controlling the President.

The Federal bank would be given sole power to issue currency, and it would carry all United States deposits. Under proper restrictions it could issue additional funds as found necessary, thus securing the much-desired elasticity. Moreover, having such immense resources at its control, it could easily transfer currency from one part of the country to another, as needed. The regional reserve banks of the Glass-Owen bill, most experts agree, will more or less prevent the free movement of currency.

The stock of the Federal bank would be sold to all who cared to buy, though no stockholder would have any voice in the control of the institution. The earnings would be divided equitably between the Government and the stockholders, the Government's earnings being applied to the liquidation of the national debt.

Compared with the Glass-Owen bill, Mr. Vanderlip's plan is simplicity itself. It lies in the face of the old tradition against a Federal bank, but wise men are beginning to discover that there is only one power capable of dealing with our big trusts, and that is the national Government. Particularly is this true of the money trust, the greatest and most menacing of all. The Vanderlip plan, worked out carefully, would provide for absolute federal control. And it would give the Government opportunity, through the central bank and branch banks established under it, to go directly into the banking business, if that final step should be found necessary.

Mr. Vanderlip does not contemplate any such regulation of the volume of the currency as that driving Fisher of Yale declares to be necessary. His plan does provide the machinery that must be put into operation before Professor Fisher's scheme can be worked out. Government control and concentration are absolutely necessary prerequisites.

The Senate could hardly do a wiser thing than to substitute Mr. Vanderlip's plan for the Glass-Owen bill. The fact that it is proposed by one of the nation's greatest bankers shows that some, at least, of the banks would not oppose the plan.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

THERE is a feeling among a large class of timid Americans that the city, the state, must never do what private capital can do. There is a confirmed distrust of government's ability to compete with private capital. We have been nurtured in the doctrine of individualism.

We don't need to go to the Panama canal illustration that the fear of government work is largely ungrounded. Grand Junction furnishes an example.

In another column will be found an interview with James H. Rankin, highway commissioner, telling of the large savings that have been made by municipal construction, over the old system of private contracts.

Under the old political form of government municipal construction was perhaps impossible, though it would have been impossible for it to have been more wasteful than the old system of private contracts, let to favored politicians. But, with the commission system, giving power and concentrating authority, all any city needs do is to pick the right man for the job, with the assurance that then thousands of dollars can be saved through municipal construction.

The Chamber of Commerce announces a membership meeting and "Indoor Barbecue" in its rooms in the Burns Theater building next Monday night, the first of a series of such gatherings to be held monthly throughout the winter. The smokers held last winter at the Chamber of Commerce were both popular and valuable, for they served to bring the members together in closer acquaintance and facilitated the exchange of helpful ideas. Every member of the organization ought to realize that it is as much his business as anybody else's to take an active part and push the work along. The meeting next Monday night ought to be largely attended.

The diplomacy of Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bryan may or may not be at fault, but the inescapable fact is that the Mexican situation is steadily becoming worse. The American people do not want war, but they are clearly tired of a temporizing policy, which, in part at least, is responsible for the present threatening attitude of European powers. The time is not far off when the Administration will have to admit the necessity of intervention, whether it wants to or not.

Your old friend Huerta now announces that he will not accept the presidency of Mexico even if he is elected. Perhaps he prefers to keep the job by the less formal method of causing his opponent to be murdered and then establishing a military dictatorship, which is the way he got it in the first instance.

MRS. CRAGG'S MISSION.

To the Editor of The Gazette:
There is no one who will dispute the fact that the religion of Jesus Christ the world owes all its has of civilization and progress. And in a direct ratio to the faithfulness of Christ's disciples through this dispensation is that progress. Any individual organization, newspaper or other exponent of progress in the world, should hesitate before they do, say or publish anything which in any way throws reproach upon that religion.

It is nevertheless a sorry truth that those who live the closest to the teachings of Jesus and seem to get closest to God, are the first to experience the coming of the world.

The teaching of Jesus is so little understood, and so poorly followed, that those who do try to live a simple apostolic life, deny themselves and follow Jesus, are immediately subjected to suspicion and even worse. The case of Mrs. Catherine Cragg is one which well illustrates this. She has gone to La Paz, Bolivia, to carry the tidings of salvation to the Indian tribes of the interior, accompanied by her daughter and husband, her son and C. B. Manning. The new sect she is charged with founding is not a sect, unless Jesus founded a sect. It is not new, for it is older than the Bible itself. The name of Holy Jumpers is a term of derision which anyone who reverences the religion of Jesus Christ should be ashamed to apply to anyone who professes to be his follower.

The Church of God, Pentecostal, has a central organization. According to the plan of God for the church, as revealed to Paul, and by him followed in setting the early Christian churches in order, God talked to his preachers in hidden times, and reveals his will today to those who have ears to hear. The Holy Spirit whom Jesus sent to teach men and to lead them into all truth, is just as surely speaking to men today as Christ's representative, as he did himself when he preached. In that sense, it is no false or flattery statement to affirm that one can converse with God, who has both ears to hear, let him hear. Jesus met his accusers with silence; this is not to answer, but to witness to the eternal living truths of the Gospel which like Jesus himself are the same yesterday, today, and forever.

COLORADO AT THE CHICAGO LAND SHOW.

To the Editor of The Gazette:
Not long ago I read the statement that 14,000 Americans have gone to Canada from the United States during the past eight years, and have taken on an average $1,000 each with them. During the past 12 months Canada attracted 14,000 Americans to the Dominion.

Cannot something be done to divert a part of this stream of emigration to Colorado? I believe this can be done. Colorado will adapt some of Canada's methods in a profitable way.

Colorado wants men of industry and character who have capital to invest here. Such men would help build up the state, and Colorado can get them by going after them as Canada does.

expense. Visitors to the Colorado booth should be asked to register, and after the show is over the representatives from Colorado should stay a week and help round up the land-seekers and bring a large load of them to Colorado. This can be done if we go about it energetically in the right way. Will not the Chamber of Commerce in Colorado Springs take the matter and cooperate with Denver and Pueblo?

The Chicago Land Show is already staged, and Colorado will pay only the share of the expense, which will not be large. Whoever goes as a representative of Colorado should be willing to sacrifice something for the state; he should expect only nominal compensation, besides his railroad fare from Colorado to Chicago and back. He should be willing to stay a full month, for the after-work is as essential as the publicity work at the show. Three or four men are needed. They should have the all-Colorado spirit and work in unison. If this be done, the show will be a good thing for Colorado.

EUGENE PARSONS.

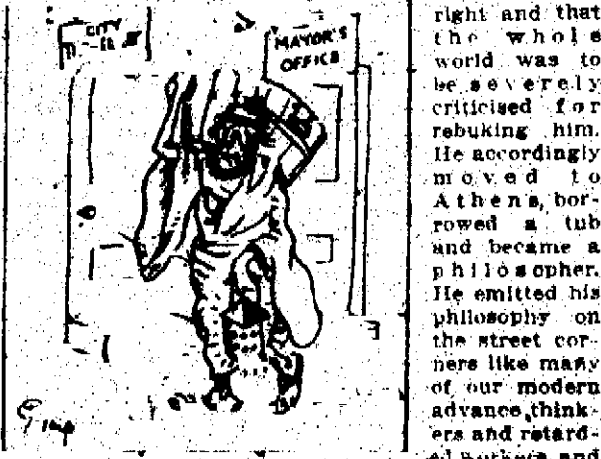

Denver, Oct. 24.

Ponderous Personages

BY GEORGE FITCH
Author of "At Good Old Slawish"

Dioegenes was the George Bernard Shaw of his time. He got his living by cussing humanity and making humanity like it.

Dioegenes was born about 400 B. C. in Greece, and during his early life took up counterfeiting for a profession. He was caught and was banished from his state. This curbed his disposition and he became the champion grouch of the period. Like modern malefactors of great intelligence he decided that he was right and that the whole world was to be severely criticized for rebuking him. He accordingly moved to Athens, borrowed a tub and became a philosopher.

"He passed by the city officials without even hesitating."

By means of living in it he became famous, and large numbers of leading citizens came to visit him and to ask him questions, which invariably got rude answers. When Alexander the Great visited him he asked what he might do to gratify him; whereupon Dioegenes asked him to step out of the sun, his morning skin fit being about come on.

All this won Dioegenes great fame, and he did his best to live up to the public expectations. He prowled about Athens by daylight with a lantern hunting for an honest man, and passed by the city officials without even hesitating. He produced a large number of sayings to prove that nobody was any better than he, and that it was dishonest to try to be honest, and in general acted like the proprietor of a billiard parlor yapping against a reformer.

Many modern thinkers have studied the system of Dioegenes and have imitated it successfully. He was his own press agent and the first one on record. If he had taken a bath and been polite to humanity he would have lived obscurely and would also have had to work for a living. On the other hand, a great many disciples tried to imitate Dioegenes, but received the cold, indifferent shoulder of the populace and had to appeal to the poor master for relief. The moral is plain; it doesn't matter much what you do in order to live in history, but one rule must be rigidly carried out. Do it first.

Unfair Suspicions

BY RUTH CAMERON

"So I went back to my work thinking how many fine people there are in this world—if you scratch 'em deep enough."—David Grayson.

There is a certain species of self-flattery in which a great many of us indulge with no apparent consciousness of our vanity and with a surprising lack of reticence. I refer to the very common habit of suspecting others of deeds and motives of which we think we ourselves would be entirely incapable.

You know the old Quaker saying, "All the world is queer except me and thee, and sometimes I think thee is a little queer." Doubtless you have laughed at that. And yet, have you never by your readiness to believe evil of anyone, even your friend, showed that you had just about that opinion of the morals of the rest of the world, if not of its intellect?

Would you be capable of slandering your good friend behind his back? Indeed, no. Very well, then, do you not see that you are flattering yourself on being far better than he when you are so ready to believe that he has been saying slanderous things about you?

Would you be capable of stealing, even if you had the greatest opportunity and temptation? Certainly not. Very well, then, do you not see that you are flattering yourself on being far better than the rest of the world when you are so quick to suspect that the chambermaid stole that gold pin which you cannot find? To be sure, she is a chambermaid and therefore a woman of means, but let me tell you that dishonesty is not a matter of class or circumstance. I don't doubt that there is just as large a percentage of dishonesty among wealthy wives as among poor chambermaids. So, of course, the wife's dishonesty does not take the form of stealing a gold pin, because there is no temptation there for her, but it certainly does just as much harm when it takes the form of stealing her neighbor's reputation or the love of her neighbor's husband. Therefore you are a woman of means and know that you would not do things like this, you have no right to suspect the chambermaid of the dishonesty of her class.

Truth is not unlikely that other folks are just as good as you and I. A friend of mine once said, "If I have been suspicious of my neighbor without having a good reason for my suspicion, I don't doubt that this is the experience of anyone. I am as much tempted to be troubled by such regrets. All of us at one time or another have found our suspicions unjust, and if we were worth anything at all, have been first ashamed and humble and then glad to find as David Grayson puts it, "how many fine people there are in the world—if you scratch 'em deep enough."

NOT HALF BAD, OR FIGURE IT YOURSELF.

From the Glasgow Chronicle.

It costs about twenty-five thousand dollars to get into the clothing industry with a mill of reasonable size. So, if a man turns out from five hundred to six hundred boxes of pins a day. Now, manufacturing pins is a very easy business, and a man can get into it with a few hundred dollars of ordinary money. This would be a very small profit of some fifteen hundred dollars on an investment of twenty-five thousand dollars.

ODDS AND ENDS

A reading of John C. Shaffer's first editorial in Friday's Denver News leads to the conclusion that as yet he does not intend to announce his policy. His promises are beautifully indefinite. There is consolation, though, in his statement that he will not follow in the Pattersonian footsteps.

Senator Patterson must have been as astonished as Tammen and Bonfils when he read, in the first issue of Mr. Shaffer's paper, a kind word for the Post. That is a real revolution in Denver journalism.

"The Pikes Peak route!" That's the name of all names for the best road across Colorado's mountains. Think how it will appeal to the scorched denizens of the Mississippi valley when they see it advertised during the blistering hot days of next summer! The very idea is cool and refreshing.

There's not much sense in worrying about official designations. People will go where the roads and the scenery are best. The Pikes Peak route has scenery unsurpassed, and, up to the present, by far the best road in Colorado. So long as the road is kept in shape, it will not lack for travel.

There will be at least one lively session at the Colorado Progressive conference in Denver next week. Tuesday night John C. Osgood will present the side of the operators, and Frank J. Hayes that of the miners in the present coal war.

What other political party would dare hear all sides of such a question, and attempt a solution fair to all? The Progressive Party stands alone.

The Dawson mine horror overtopped anything Colorado has known. Twice as many lives were sacrificed as in the Volturno disaster, and only a hundred less than in the great mine explosion near Cardiff, Wales.

Frank A. Vanderlip has at least the courage of his convictions, and comes out boldly for a government bank, with sole not-imposing powers. The plan he proposes would be infinitely better than the administration bill and the only argument against its adoption is the foolish superstition against a federal bank, inherited from Andrew Jackson's time.

It is worth notice that this bold plan—which gives to the people, through their government, absolute control over the issue of money—comes from the head of one of the greatest banks in the country. The average politician is far too timid to advocate such a really constructive policy.

Tomorrow, October 26, is election day in Mexico. The bets are about 100 to 1 that the next president will be some other than Woodrow Wilson's old friend, Victoriano Huerta.

And that will put it right up to the U. S. A.

"The best government Mexico has ever had," says Huerta, "has been a government by the few." And Huerta would reduce the few to one, namely, Victoriano Huerta.

"And the universal opinion was, and is, among all the civilized community at last, (O, Lord, at last!) has been relieved of Thomas M. Patterson, who is known throughout the country as a journalistic blackguard, without a rival."—Denver Post.

But there is still no relief for Denver from the still more shameful course of Tammen and Bonfils (O, Lord, how long!).

Governor Baldwin opposes national control of the liquor question. Being a typical Democratic reactionary, Governor Baldwin opposes every extension of federal power. For it is only by such an extension of federal power, as Theodore Roosevelt pointed out in his Assawatomie address, that we shall ever attain social justice. And social justice (including control of the saloons) is exactly what the reactionaries most vehemently oppose.

Lane Wilson, whom Mr. Bryan removed from his ambassadorial job in Mexico. We are reminded of a man who was fired in a cow camp where he happened to be lunching years ago. "It's mighty funny," he remarked, "that they always fire the best men first in this camp."—Fort Collins Review.

Dr. Rainsford Says Church Is Dying of "Dry Rot"

The Former Rector of St. George's, New York, J. P. Morgan's Church, Utters Startling Views. Says Churches are Aristocratic. The Working Man Has Dropped the Church, Which Must Be Radically Reformed, Is the Charge. Dr. Rainsford New Out of Church.

What irresponsible street corner philosophers may say about the church usually means little; certainly people pay scant heed to it. But when the former rector of one of the largest and most useful, as well as one of the wealthiest churches in America, comes out with an accurately stated and carefully worded attack upon the church then the entire public is interested.

Dr. William S. Rainsford has recently published the most excellent article upon the whole Christian church that has been in print for a long time. It is published in an issue of "The Survey" which coincides with the present season of the Protestant Episcopal general convention. The article avowedly challenges the attention of that body.

The sweeping statements of the arraignment are such as that "The churches are dying of dry rot." "The American churches are aristocratic." "The wage-earner is dropping the church." "The churches must themselves be radically reformed before they can accomplish any change." "The Christian reformer may be profoundly doubtful of both the value and permanence of organized Christianity, as it is represented in the modern church." There is nothing ambiguous about these statements; whether they are needed medicine and certified drugs or not, it is sure that they are not in homeopathic doses.

Who is Dr. Rainsford?

In the light of these sweeping allegations, the question arises—who is Dr. Rainsford? The popular mind recalls him as rector of St. George's, in New York city. He was a friend of the financier, who was in sympathy with Dr. Rainsford's institutional work. It will be recalled that St. George's dealt largely in social features, of which the boxing classes for boys received a considerable amount of attention from the newspapers.

Dr. Rainsford has written for leading American publications, and he has several books to his credit. After an extended hunting trip in Africa, supposed to be taken on account of his health, he quietly slipped out of the ministry. The denouement of Dr. Rainsford, by arrangement with the bishop, carried with it no suspicion whatever of moral stain upon his character. It was commonly understood throughout the country that he had been troubled by theological and ecclesiastical perplexities. To this theory his article in "The Survey" gives color. His action commanded the respect of the public, in that he refused to stay in a church with which he was not in sympathy, thus precluding any possible heresy trial or discussion. He sought to conserve the welfare of the work, and has seemed to pass entirely from the public eye until the present dramatic utterance.

Dr. Rainsford was born in Ireland, and is a graduate of Cambridge university. He began his ministry in England, but early traveled through the United States and Canada as a missionary. He became assistant rector of St. James cathedral and after seven years of this service, was called to be rector of St. George's in 1883; there he remained for 22 years.

In considering his criticisms, this background should be borne in mind. Dr. Rainsford knew the church in New York city, through his associations with men of wealth and prominence. He was not so familiar with the great bulk of churches throughout the land, whose members are working people. The general charge that the laboring men are not in the church is refuted by the fact that some of the denominations are almost entirely made up of plain folk.

Is the Church Equal to Today?

As a general statement of his criticisms, Dr. Rainsford lays down the question, "Is the church to inspire and guide the inevitable social and intellectual movement of the day, or is it to stand aloof or oppose it?" Then Dr. Rainsford proceeds to the proposition that "The church must themselves be radically reformed, before they can accomplish much." "The wage-earner has small in the matter; the modern church seldom organized so as to reach he has dropped the church, or at the Protestant churches, or churches have dropped him." "The church does not represent the whole people as once it did, hardened by its proved lack of its would-be reformers have left, they have been driven forth by its stand-patters remain with ruling its deliberations and directing its policy."

Charges Church is Undeclared

"The churches are dying of dry rot within them, few seem to why. That cause largely lies in conservative determination to on various creedal platforms, and this policy is adopted, the progressive part of the membership is only a question time." "In a Democratic age and out the American churches are aristocratic. The great churches have for years deliberately catered for, and loved, the well-to-do, well-to-do in the community."

"Further, in a changing age churches find they cannot change elements that make for change left or are leaving them. Yet we church born in an age of change, no great advance ever made by was ever made except at the cost of mightily change."

"The God of Things as They Are"

"If men are to worship today churches; if they are to associate themselves in order to be religiously alive, as they must associate themselves in order to be politically or morally effective, then it is plain as plain plain can be, that men will only associate to worship a God of things as they are."

"No More Gracids," Says He

Dr. Rainsford would have sympathy with the ancient of making councils of the church content with their master's plan unity, good but misguided men dreaming of, and working for, a creed. Still they insist on it, it is clear as day Jesus himself once demanded, adhesion to a as a condition of communion."

"The days of great-making are And not in thinking the same it and saying it in the same way, by trying to do as he would have served all hope for that most useful in Christian men, which can purify present, and prepare the way for better future."

There is certain to be a national discussion of these utterances, spread with the deliberance as a realization, still, it is probably wiser. Ecclesiastical organizations must not expect special immunity assume a martyr pose, but stand to all open criticism, and be read give answer concerning the faith is in them. For written into the nature of Christianity is the duty of its founders—Ye shall know truth, and the truth shall make free."

What a person says in temper is often a revelation of his innermost character, which in calmer moments he has prudentially disguised. There is no need to analyze the mood of Moses; enough to know that when, after his interview with Jehovah, he confronted the multitude, he was impatient and angry. Perhaps this was an expression of spiritual pride. Perhaps he felt himself too big for his task. Certainly his words show that he was thinking more of himself than of people's need or of God's honor. It was a return to the immaturity of self-consciousness.

Wise discipline is not in perpetual hearing, but in clear, adequate and unmistakable punishment for the violation of well-understood law. We never knew which offense, even after we have been entangled by long immunities, is going to bring retribution.

The apostle Peter, who by his indiscrepancy to the business, is surprised when he suddenly finds himself out of a position. When Moses perpetually and proudly wrought the great miracle and took to himself the glory which belonged only to God, he never dreamed that swift and dire punishment would follow. His state of mind had been a general growth, like that of the conceited child who comes to think that he is the important member of the firm in the business of and winning.

Over and over again let it be written that "the Lord thy God is a jealous God." Insistent upon his royal prerogatives, God will not be king at all unless he is king in all. His sovereignty, and he will not let any man or nation flout him in this. The old phrase should be written on every heart: "Do not let God be mocked." Moses inspired God's place and God's praise. The "thou" of this was a breach of faith, a failure in loyalty and a lack of reverence.

Swift fell the blow. Like the fool, the virgin who found the door to the wedding feast shut, so Moses suddenly was told that the borders of the Promised Land were closed against him. The hopes of all the years fell clattering to the ground out of Moses' hand. He had failed God, and for his very soul's sake, as well as for the good name of Jehovah in the eyes of the people, he must be punished. In an hour, and a way, that we know not, God vindicates himself in the case of every one of us. The words of Micah are a good ending: "What doth Jehovah require of thee, but to do justly, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

THE OUTREACHING LIFE

Topics Comments on the Uniform Prayer Meeting Topic of the Young People's Societies, Christian Endeavor, etc., for October 26—"Missionary Essentials at Home and Abroad IV, Going." Matt. 22:1-10

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

The hundred Korean Christians who were recently delivered from false imprisonment, and probable death were rescued, primarily, by the activity of Christians in America, which illustrates the remarkable truth that in these wonderful times it is possible for anybody, anywhere to "go in to all the world."

A distinguished New York educator remarked a few days ago, "The world knows what the Christian mission in America today." It is that the best men are all being sent abroad to foreign mission service. Whether the main contention is warranted or not, the left-handed compliment to the character of the mission force is merited. Not long since, the sneer was common that missionaries were second-rate men who could not make a living in their homeland. Now even the critics admit that the caliber of the Church's foreign ambassadors is beyond cavil. The objection shifts to the ground that they are too good.

The twentieth century has a long arm, which reaches everywhere. By doing it even the least of the star-at-homes may, in person or representation, actively to the ends of the earth.

Not all Christians are wanted on the mission field, but all are asked to have the spirit which says: "Here am I; send me."

One curious effect of the rise of second and third generation missionaries has been the dissipation of the old notion that the chief characteristic of foreign missions is "the physical hardships." Now that the sons and grandsons of pioneer missionaries, by the scores and even hundreds, are returning to the field to share the work of their forefathers, we are coming to understand that as a career, missions must have something worth while to offer. True, the argument proves the sturdy stuff of which missionaries are made; but it also indicates a new thought concerning the Church's work abroad. The primitive conditions which the pioneers met have been steadily improved, and the average foreign missionary lives in a comfortable home, and has all the necessities of life, some conveniences and a few luxuries. His hardships, on the whole, do not equal those of the home missionary in this land.

In one Japanese community they call Christianity the "Fulton Religion" because Dr. Samuel Fulton, the Southern Presbyterian Church, was once the sole representative of the good news. The incident reveals one of the rich rewards of the missionary. His privilege it is to embody Christianity in himself, so that in all his manner of life men and women who are totally unacquainted with the teachings of Jesus may read the gospel. To a peculiar extent he becomes a "living epistle." His life is read before his words are understood.

The famine victims in India, India sent to moulder "Yawning Vastness." It wants our lives. It wants our lives! That is true of all afflictions and blessings, and institutions; they demand life. We often read that the saloon needs new life in order to carry on its business, but so also the church in a seriously different way. Unless patients give their sons and daughters to the ministry and missions to the work of the kingdom will languish within a generation. Everything that counts costs life.

Some young folks are willing to go on an India's coast strand, but are unwilling to work out in a cross-street Sunday school or a city mission. Yet one day a mission field as the other.

The millionaire who gives away in charity is less of a missionary than the young man who gives himself to work for the needy.

There are various ways of reaching the foreign mission field. Besides the steamship route, one is via the prayer-closet. Another is via the roads of intelligent interest and sympathy. Still another is through the church offertory. The personal substitute plan is yet one more. If there is the will to minister to men for God on the mission field the way will not be far to seek.

The going are the growing. All the world is God's mission field, and whoever is doing this work anywhere is a true missionary.

Nowadays all sorts of talents are needed in mission work. Carpenters, plumbers, blacksmiths, engineers, machinists, ship carpenters, business managers, nurses, doctors and teachers are called for, as well as evangelists and preachers.

Somewhat as Douglas threw the heart of the Bear into the midst of the fox, in order to rally the watering holes, so many persons may send their hearts where their feet will never travel.

CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Best prospects ever known for winter wheat in the United States put the bulls today at a disadvantage. Closing prices were a shade higher, but a down trend showed a real loss of 1/2 to 1/4, and out, a decline of 1/2 to 1/4. In provisions, the outcome ranged from 1/2 decline to 1/4 advance.

When wheat prices bulged a little today, the volume of selling increased to a noticeable extent. Aggressive action on the part of the bears came chiefly from reports concerning the winter crop. Expert opinions were to the effect that taking the country as a whole, such favorable conditions had never before prevailed.

Buyers of wheat delivered their contracts mainly from the fact that seaboard clearances for the week were the largest in 10 years. There were also reports that Duluth was doing an active business in Manitoba and Dakota wheat. About 100,000 bushels, however, maintained their front and were reinforced by the last by statements from country points northwest that spring wheat receipts were likely to be more liberal.

Corn was freely sold on account of the fine weather. But it followed the lead of corn. The principal feature of the day's trade was heavy commission house selling on a midseason advance.

Offerings of provisions were quite liberal early but very well taken, and the market developed a firm tone. The temporary weakness at the outset was due to a decline in the price of live hogs.

NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Fluctuations of stocks today were irregular. Opening with an advance, the market fell below yesterday's close, and during most of the day's session, made little progress in either direction. The close came with an upward swing in progress and the leaders ended the day with material gains.

The only definite movement of the day was that the last hour, when the market showed signs of independent strength. Traders accounted for the early advance by referring to the plan for a central government bank, presented by Frank A. Vanderlip, which was reported to have found favor with some members of the senate committee. President Wilson's uncompromising opposition to this plan nullified the effect of this factor. The new record for foreign trade shown in the September statement had a sustaining influence. Dispatches from Mexico were regarded as disquieting.

New Haven reached a low record at 3 1/2, as did the convertible at 10 1/2. Continuation of the report that the Pennsylvania was contemplating a huge bond issue was followed by renewed depressing of the stock to 10 1/2, although it did not reach the year's low point. Later it rallied strongly. Rock Island stocks and bonds were buoyant, rising 1 1/2 to 3 1/2 points. Bonds were irregular.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: Despite irregularities of weather and the natural ebb and flow in trade, our reports of the volume of distributive trade holds up well, though probably not as large as some weeks ago, but as heavy at some centers as a year ago. In the southwest the disposition is to go carefully. Pacific coast reports are cheerful. Wheat, including four exports, the week are the largest for 1913, aggregating $325,000 bushels against $485,000 last year.

DUN'S REVIEW

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Dun's weekly review of trade will say tomorrow: The business situation continues fairly satisfactory, although evidences of reactionary tendencies are manifest in certain branches of trade. Older weather has stimulated both retail and wholesale trade. A better tone is apparent in the oil market.

PUEBLO, Colo., Oct. 24.—The Mothers' congress of Colorado in session here today, adopted resolutions condemning immediately in women's dress and asking that dressmakers, seamstresses and tailors be held responsible for the sale of cheap, low quality, and unbecoming dress. Resolutions declare for a single standard of morality for men and women, favor a course of study for schools to teach the evil effects of tobacco and liquor, oppose wars and protest against the sale of cigarettes to the youth of Colorado.

William Seddon, at left, chief wireless operator on the Voltur, who heroically stayed at his post on the burning vessel flashing wireless calls for help, and H. G. Barry, the Voltur's assistant purser. Both were rescued.

NAVAL CRUISE WILL BE CLOSELY WATCHED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Naval department officials have taken steps to profit from the proposed European cruise of the Atlantic fleet by confining an engineering competition under service conditions. The performance of the vessels in the fleet will be watched with the closest attention and track will be kept of the amount of coal and water consumed, the quantity of lubricating oil used and the resultant condition of the machinery.

MAYOR KLINE LEARNS W. C. T. U. Believe in Total Abstinence

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Mayor Kline was not applauded when in an address welcoming the delegates of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union in New York city today, he suggested that the solution of the liquor problem lay not in absolute prohibition but in a gradual process of education. Pro-longed hand clapping greeted his remark that "I understand some of you believe in total abstinence. I see that all of you do, but I cannot help thinking that temperance is the better word to emphasize. It is well to recognize and not antagonize the element in human nature that rebels against sudden drastic reform."

ANNA HEID'S ALL-STAR
VARIETY JUBILEE, TODAY

Anna Heid comes to the Opera house today, matinee and night with a pageant of beautiful women, frivolous music and non-sensical mirth. The Varieties Jubilee—another name for all-star vaudeville—a musical playlet of rare excellence both as to book and score, is the vehicle which will carry not less than eight vaudeville acts of great international distinction.

George Rehan and his company of seven gifted players in that beautiful dramatic idyl "The Sign of the Cross" will not fail to convince the public of the sincerity of Miss Heid's management in the desire to give the American public the best and most beautiful entertainment possible in the current varying development of art and variety in light amusement. "The Sign of the Cross" has proved itself the dramatic basis of the vaudeville stage and critics everywhere, as well as that portion of the discriminating public which has witnessed it, have unanimously agreed upon the singular charm and deduction of it as presented by Mr. Rehan and his brilliant coworkers.

From China, to reinforce this remarkable vaudeville production comes the Imperial Technique company of six Oriental acrobats whose grotesque and almost uncanny feats in athletic contortions, balancing and demonstration of physical strength and dexterity have amazed even the experts of the mysterious country which evolved them. The most startling and unexplained performances, defiant of all the laws of gravitation and equilibrium, mark the sensational work of their. Picking acrobats, and a score of little efforts are being made to duplicate, imitate, or counterfeited their amazing feats.

In response to the immediate and growing American exaltation of the dance as an expression of the national life of America, Miss Heid includes in her remarkable company Francis and Florette, the admitted protagonists of the artistic expression of the Tango, the Turkey Trot and the Heintz Waltz, all of which, contrary to the premature judgment of the public, are capable of an infinite and even majestic interpretation when done by genuine artists. Francis and Florette have achieved the sum and crown of duet dancing. They have put the classic touch upon dances which are already recognized as part of the retail expression of the American people, and it is for this reason that Mr. Heid has added them to the group of versatile artists who will support Miss Heid during this season.

Charles Ahern—the funniest burlesque comedian of recent years—with a group of 10 clowning orifices, chauffeurs and grotesque fun makers—will disclose the famous act that has made Paris, London and New York shout with delighted laughter. The swift pantomime, the most startling escapades and the most ludicrous buffonery crowd one another in this idiotic, funny feature and with it containing a delicious flavor of the irony on the "new drama" of the day as expressed in half-sarcastic scenes between automobiles, motorcycles, trains, bicycles and such recognizable vehicles.

Harold Hendler, the eccentric and gifted piano prodigy, is another captivating member of Miss Heid's assemblage of versatile and contrasted stars. Himself a great artist at the piano, he gives pleasure, humor and intense interest to his performance by the most convincing impersonations of all of the great virtuosos of the piano. With a kind of droll wizardry that does not conceal his complete mastery of the instrument, Hendler plays a classic concerto or a music-hall "racket" exactly as Paderewski, Lisztine, Godowsky, D. Albert or any of the great concert pianists would play them. To an amazing proficiency with the instrument itself, Hendler adds a perfect power of mimicry and the effect is beautifully humorous, graciously witty, melodiously delightful. Ward & Curran in the emperors of laughter will appear in their roaring farce "The Stage Door Tender," will reinforce the comedy equipment of this jubilee of vaudeville.

guests. It will be recalled that it cost the Vanderbilts just $100 a minute to secure this interesting medical comedy, and that it was considered the most remarkable and enthralling entertainment ever conceived and realized. There have been many versions of what transpired that eventful night, but the best authority has it that the beautiful girls and brilliant principals were received with open arms and treated with all the courtesy and consideration of the most favored guests. One thing is certain, and that is that the "Merry Countess" and her gorgeous costume captivated the allied youth and bewitched the elders. The same production, to the minutest detail, that electrified Newport and the Vanderbilt guests, will be seen here.

"THE GIRLS AND THE JOCKEY" AT THE EMPRESS

Without question, one of the best vaudeville shows ever seen in Colorado Springs is at the Empress this week, opening today "The Girls and the Jockey." Is the headline, and is worthy of this position. It's a big beauty act with stunning girls who can sing, with two of the funniest comedies ever staged. It is a laugh to think of them there are 12 people in this act, and most of them are girls. Another number on the bill is worthy of special mention, namely Ryan and Lee. A laughing sensation is the only correct way to class these more than clever artists and if you cannot laugh at their droll antics, you really want to see a doctor and take something for it. The you need it had Evans and Vidocq are two bright stars of Darktown, another big laugh on an exceptionally good bill. Walker and Lee, in just a girl, are two more laugh makers of merit. Just take a tip from father and see them, you'll be tickled to come again and see them more than once. Mae Francis, a dainty vaudeville, prettily as a Dresden doll, with an enchanting voice and say, "girls," you want to see her gowns. Oh, me! but they're exquisite, real creations, marvels of the modiste's art. She's sure some girl. We are sure you'll like the Leland in their Paint-O-Graphic specialties they're a charming couple, with the artistic temperament fully developed. If we forget to mention our orchestra, we would be doing an injustice both to the discernment of the public and to our director, George Hockenberger, familiarly called "Hockey." Of course, he has red hair, and is liable to hand us a swat for mentioning the fact, but we should worry about a little thing like that. This extraordinary laughing combination will be with us four days only, opening their engagement Saturday, matinee, October 25, and continuing Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is their farewell—Auf Wiedersehen.

BROWN'S ROUBAUX

In this company there are seven members. Each is an artist. They play a number of instruments as well as sing. The most quiet work is played. Everywhere they go, they are requested to come again which speaks well for a road organization. Any one who loves good music should attend their concert. They will give one concert at the First Baptist church Thursday evening, October 30. Tickets at price of 10 cents may be obtained at the church at that time.

TAKING TOLL OF BABIES

GETS AUTOMOBILE, SON AND BUILT DOG AND GOES BACK

Dr. T. P. Martin of Taos, N. M., owner of the automobile and the faithful hound and father of Jack Martin, aged 10, who was taken to Colorado and two girls made the trip to Colorado Springs nearly a week ago, arrived in Colorado Springs yesterday. After a talk with his son he gave the boy some money and started him to Cheyenne, Wyo. where the young man will attempt to make a start for himself. Arrangements whereby the two girls will be sent back to their homes were also made. Ferguson was released from jail Dr. Martin was released from jail and started back home and the incident so far as Colorado Springs is concerned, is ended.

Remarkable Cure of Dysentery.
"I was attacked with dysentery about July 15th, and used the doctor's medicine and other remedies with no relief, only getting worse all the time. I was unable to do anything and my weight dropped from 145 to 125 pounds. I suffered for about two months when I was advised to use Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I used two bottles of it and it gave me permanent relief," writes B. W. Hill of Snow Hill, N. C. For sale by all dealers. Adv.
